EXPECTATIONS OF IASC EXECUTIVE BOARD MEMBERS

1. Candidates for the Executive Board of the IASC must be considered exceptional. It is expected that the individual and the advisor have exhibited an interest in District, State, and National Student Council programs before considering becoming Executive Board members.
2. Upon becoming a member of the IASC Executive Board, there are certain expectations including time and money for travel to student council as well as the "hidden costs" to a school (telephone, fax machine, copy work, and postage). In addition, members of the IASC Executive Board must be willing to make sacrifices in terms of local commitments.
3. Some sacrifices must be understood also. It is obvious that in order to participate as an effective board member, a time commitment is necessary. The student may find that this has some effect on academic achievement. It is usually necessary to curtail some local activities such as athletics, local council projects and offices, music, and the number of hours employed.
4. To be an effective board member, an individual must have the support and consent of the principal, advisor, fellow student council members and family.
5. Students and advisors elected or appointed to the board will be required to attend board meetings and remain overnight if necessary.
6. Be an example of good citizenship at all activities and uphold the IASC Code of Conduct.
7. Be rested for all meetings. Each meeting involves a high degree of concentration for several weekends throughout the year.
